Messrs. D. H. & H. Chapman,
Gentlemen:

I have a friend
who has a fine Rembrandt-Peale portrait of Washington which he wishes to dispose of. Have you a customer
for it?

Do you expect to have an auction of Washingtoniana or other objects in which such a picture
would be likely to bring a good price?

Very truly yours,
Edwin A. Barber

Gentlemen:-

Replying to yours of the 13th instant, I beg to say that we already have a fine collection of continental and colonial notes consisting of about eight hundred specimens, and as we have not yet arranged these, we do not know definitely what we lack. We hope to have these put in shape some time during the coming winter, and if you then have the collection of which you write in your hands, I shall be pleased to see what can be done in regard to filling out our collection.

If you will send me a full description of the Liverpool pitcher and the bust of Washington, together with prices, I shall see if we can use them here.

Very truly yours,

Edwin A. Barber,

Curator.

Gentlemen:-

Replying to your favor of the 14th instant, I thank you for the information about the colonial china pieces, and while the prices of some are entirely beyond us, I shall try to stop in some time soon and take a look at them.

In regard to the paper money, it will probably be some time before we shall be able to make out a list of what we have, but as soon as that is done, I shall be pleased to send you a copy for any suggestions you may have to make.

Very truly yours,

Edwin A. Barber,
Curator.

[TESTIMONIALS OF THE PRESS]

Tulip Ware of the Pennsylvania-German Potters

BY EDWIN ATLEE BARBER, A.M., PH.D.

---

It is a worthy addition to the list of books on American Pottery.—The Sun, New York.

The most important contribution to ceramic literature which has yet appeared in this country.—Daily Local News, West Chester, Pa.

It treats at first hand and exhaustively of a fresh subject not so treated before and with final authority.—Public Ledger, Philadelphia.

Collectors and others interested in pottery will find Mr. Barber's latest volume decidedly interesting. The list of early American potters that he has included is particularly valuable.—The Independent, New York.

It cannot fail to interest the student of ceramic art and many general readers will find the time spent over its pages not unprofitable.—The Record, Philadelphia.

Calls attention to a fact unknown to ceramic collectors and historians, viz.: that a curious art had flourished for a century and a half in an isolated community in Pennsylvania.—The Item, Philadelphia.

Ample and beautifully illustrated, the whole combining to form a profitable and highly pleasing history of a high and wonderful art.—Book News, Philadelphia.
